

Blast at Marshall

ALTHOUGH the state department tried to throw a monkey wrench in his typewriter, Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault of the famed Flying Tigers has defiantly gone ahead with his memoirs. Now he is ready to set the match to a literary explosion that will rattle the windows inside Secretary of State Marshall's office.

The China ace tells his own story as he lived it—shooting from the hip. Summing up Marshall's mission to China in his unpublished memoirs, Chennault observes sourly:

"Net result of the 15-month Marshall mission to China was the rescue of Chinese Communists from military disaster, blunting the offensive edge of the generalissimo's armies, and setting the stage for the Communist offensives of 1947 that netted them most of Manchuria and a large part of north China."

Chennault charges that Marshall gave safe conduct to half a million Communist troops to slip out of a Nationalist trap through Kailash pass. Later these same troops sealed up the pass in violation of their safe-conduct pact, then came back with Japanese arms to wrest Manchuria away from Chiang Kai-shek.

These arms were taken from Russian stockpiles, Chennault claims, yet Marshall's arms embargo cut off American supplies from the Nationalist armies. Since all their equipment was American, they couldn't use it without American replacements.

"Marshall has learned considerably more about Communist tactics since his China days," blasts Chennault. "But he has never candidly acknowledged his mistakes in China or made any attempt to rectify them."

Marshall's Distrust

Chennault gives a clue to his bitter feelings against Marshall in discussing their early relationship. Marshall believed the Flying Tigers chief was disloyal to the late Gen. "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, then in command of the China theater.

Marshall also thought Chennault had failed in east China, and even doubted his personal honesty. Once Marshall stated flatly that he would never approve another promotion or decoration for Chennault.

Chennault points out in his unpublished memoirs that the Russians have watched their German neighbors go down to defeat twice in two-front wars, and have carefully avoided the same pitfall. While Germany was menacing her western flank, Russia kept out of open war with Japan even though pitched battles were fought along the Manchurian border. Russia was also wary of taking on an exhausted Japan in 1945 until victory over Germany was complete.

World Government

"As a practicing warrior for many years," concludes Chennault, "I am convinced that war is completely futile. It settles only the problems of the past and creates new problems for the future. There is no place in the world today for the narrow, competitive nationalism that sparks the tinder of war. My experience as an airman has taught me the puniness of the elaborate, artificially erected, man-made borders of political states."

"I am convinced that the people of this planet must move inevitably toward a single form of world government if civilization is to survive. It is our task now to see that this world government comes as a mutual federation of free peoples rather than through the ruthless domination of a master slave state."

NOTE: In his memoirs, Chennault also blasted the tough hide of "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, called him the "best four-star battalion commander in the army." (A battalion normally is commanded by a major.) Stilwell, according to Chennault, used 1917 tactics to fight war in the 1940s.

Secretary of State George Marshall spent Christmas at Walter Reed hospital, recuperating from a kidney operation. Defense Secretary James Forrestal went to Hobe Sound, Florida. . . . Campbell Turns Out at Polls As Hospital District Gets Green Light in Majority Vote

Approximately 20 per cent of the Campbell residents turned out Tuesday, Jan. 11 to give their support in forming a West Valley Hospital district. Action on the plan to give the Campbell-Los Gatos-Saratoga areas a hospital of their own was virtually assured when the election was carried by a three-to-one majority.

Voting against the project in the election were Saratoga, Cupertino, and one rural district. But since a simple majority was all that was needed to carry the motion the yes votes won.

"The next step in this project will be the appointing of five directors from the West Side district," said H. M. Shadle, local vice-chairman of the working committee in the campaign. "Our work in the committee is finished. Now it is up to the directors who are appointed by the County Board of Supervisors to make plans for a hospital and get another election to vote bonds for financing the project."

Campbell turned out some 349 strong at the IOOF Hall to register a decided yes on the project. Votes from this area showed 262 yes, 81 no.

To "go ahead" on the formation of the district as a result of Tuesday's election climaxed a year and a half of work by leaders in this area who wanted to see the building of a rural hospital with an approximate 40-bed capacity.

The election was requested by petitions presented to the Board of Supervisors and signed by 1600 names. The pre-election campaign was carried on by a Hospital Committee, with the assistance of civic organizations in the three communities. Heading it as chairman was R. C. Groesbeck, Los Gatos. Other members were H. M. Shadle, vice-chairman, Campbell; George J. Stepovich, Los Gatos, secretary; Dean Balch, Los Gatos, treasurer; O. L. Winston, Saratoga; Laurence J. Hill, Campbell and Josepa Long, Saratoga.

The votes cast at each precinct were as follows:

1. IOOF Hall, Campbell — Yes, 262; no, 81.
2. 2332 Maywood Ave.—Yes, 34; no, 41.
3. Osmer Store, Alma — Yes, 160; no, 17.
4. Los Gatos Firehouse — Yes, 446; no, 45.
5. Los Gatos Town Hall—Yes, 498; no, 35.
6. Azevedo residence, Mozart Ave., Los Gatos—Yes, 213; no, 50.
7. Smith residence, Box 307, San Tomas Road — Yes, 206; no, 61.
8. Saratoga School — Yes, 134; no, 266.
9. IOOF Hall, Cupertino — Yes, 36; no, 74.

Approximately 480 parents turned out for the annual Parents Night held at the Campbell Union high school Wednesday evening, according to Principal Laurence Hill.

"Everything went along smoothly," said Hill, "and the parents seemed to enjoy the procedure of attending the same classrooms that their son or daughter attends." The principal also commented that the parents seemed as a whole to like the idea of open house coming in January instead of later on in the year as has been the case in the past.

The Old Home Town Bustles With Activity As Plans Get Under Way for Celebration

Things are shaping up for the gala February Old Settlers' Day celebration in Campbell. Already 35 shave-free men have signed up for the Whiskerino Contest with more registering every day. The floats for the big parade are the subject of every service club and business house, and Campbell lovelies are scurrying around to make sure their friends will buy their tickets for the dance from them so they can be queen for a day.

General Chairman Forrest Reese yesterday announced two more to aid in the celebration. Homer Hyde will become vice-president of the general committee and Mrs. Dorothy Crawford will be the new secretary.

"Deadline for turning in the number of tickets sold in the Queen contest will be at 4 p.m. on Feb. 21," said chairman H. R. Strickland. "Any female is eligible to enter the Queen contest. All she has to do to win the contest is to be the most popular girl in Campbell as the winner will be the girl who sells the most tickets to the American Legion Dance in the high school auditorium on Feb. 22."

COMMITTEE TO MEET

On Tuesday, Jan. 18, Reese has called a meeting of all the members of the general committee of Old Settlers' Day. They will assemble at 8 p.m. at 273 E. Campbell avenue. From then until the celebration the general committee will meet every Tuesday.

"Last year we had some of the most beautiful and comical floats in our history," said Brand, "and it seems that each year we get better. This year we'll probably see one of the most elaborate parades ever put on in this area."

At the next meeting on Jan. 18 the San Tomas group will discuss the elementary program covering such topics as the use of visual aids in the elementary school and the ways of building pupil responsibility and loyalty toward the school and country.

The purpose of our discussion is to promote better parent understanding of the public school program and to encourage parent participation in planning the school curriculum," said Shuey.

COAST'S TELEPHONES DOUBLE IN TEN YEARS

How we've made your telephone a more valuable servant than ever...and a better buy too

2. Our family had to grow to make this gain. In '38 we numbered some 29,000 men and women. Today there are more than double that number...operators, installers, linemen, plant maintenance men...all the people who make telephone service possible. And training them to do their work for the West was a big job in itself.

1. Today you can call twice as many telephones on the Coast as you could ten years ago. To provide service for our growing West, to make it possible for you to reach your new friends over the telephone, we've doubled our system in a decade...from 1,830,000 in the fall of 1938, to more than 3,700,000 today. This increase is more than we added in the previous 60 years.

3. An amazing number of miles of wire has been added to link these new telephones...6,000,000 miles of it. New buildings by the hundreds have been built and sensitive equipment installed. Yet we're far from through. For the West is growing still—and it must have good telephone service to help it grow soundly.

Local Rotary Club Hears F. Reese Report On Finance

Presenting to the members the semi-annual financial report by Secretary Forrest Reese highlighted Monday's Rotary Club meeting in the IOOF Hall.

Reese also reported to the members that from July 1, 1948, thru December 21, 1948, the club had 426 out-of-town visitors at its regular meetings. These men came all the way from Indianapolis, Indiana, and Neadsha, Kansas to both the northern and southern parts of California.

The next regular meeting of the Rotary club is scheduled for Monday, January 17 at the IOOF hall.

Country Store Doesn't Sell It Gives Food Away

"I have in the left balcony," said Theater Manager Steve Butler Saturday night as he encoed for the local theater's newest novelty give-away show, the Country Store.

Every Saturday evening for the next five weeks the Country Store will give away six huge bags of groceries to the lucky ticket holders who attend the Campbell Theater on that night. Sponsor of the Country Store is the J&A Food Mart, Campbell. Helping the theater manager along will be the "J" of the store, Joe Fusaro.

When asked what prompted the idea Joe laughed modestly and said, "Well, we just thought it up as an idea to bring a lot of fun and laughs to the patrons of the Campbell Theater. And fun we do have."

And with food prices what they are today—bag of groceries, here we come!

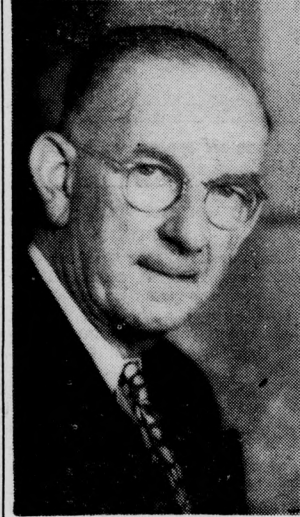

News from ORCHARD CITY GRANGE

By ROBERT WURFER, Sr.

Orchard City Grange 333 held its first regular meeting of the year with Martin Walsh, newly installed Worthy Master, presiding. All of the officers including the new Master marched in with full regalia and in fine force and were escorted to their stations.

Again four new applications were presented and voted on. Brother Mervyn Keesling and Brother Harry Barnes gave a very interesting market report about prunes and other fruit which was especially interesting to the fruit growers. The situation does not look very encouraging.

Our worthy secretary read several communications among which was an announcement from the Physicians Service (C.P.S.) reminding its members that it does not issue new cards every time the dues are paid. The Grange sales slip contest committee announced.

Martin Walsh

nounces a change whereby all 30 prizes will go to the winning subordinate granges and members.

Still being worked on are the very much mentioned water and power questionnaire.

Brother R. R. Morrill explained the benefits to the Grange and the individual Granger who buy from the Grange Business organization. Then it was decided to use lecture time to get acquainted with the newly-elected officers in the Banquet where refreshments were served. Helping on the committee were sister and brother Harry Van and sister Wurfer. Thanks were extended to Mrs. Skillman who had charge of appointing the refreshment committees.

Brother Shattuck announced that brother Robert Wurfer, Sr., will give a talk entitled "Czechoslovakia as I Knew Her," at the San Jose Grange on Jan. 17.

The Orchard City Grange started the year in a fine cooperative spirit and had a jolly good time and refreshments.

Fish Calls Groups Together To Plan

In a move possibly to combine the Coordinating and Community Councils, the members of both groups will meet Thursday, Jan. 20 at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater at the high school.

Ray Fish, president of the Community Council, has called the two groups together to discuss either closer cooperation between the two or combining under one Council with a new name.

"The Coordinating Council in Campbell is responsible for the summer programs in the town," explained Fish, "while the Community Council is the Community Chest. If we could combine the two perhaps we could create more interest and at the same time work more smoothly."

At the meeting the Community Council will distribute the funds collected in the recent Community Chest drive to the various youth organizations and clubs in the Campbell area.

"We'll have to revise entirely the present structure of allotting funds because the drive this year fell way short of the goal," said the president. The goal for the year was set at $6000 for Campbell but the Community Chest fell short approximately $2300.

Miss Marian Peake Relates Experiences Undergone In Europe

Clothing and food are still badly needed in Europe today, Miss Marian Peake told members of the Business and Professional Women's club when they met Wednesday at the Campbell House for dinner.

Miss Peake, who was guest speaker for the group, has returned just recently from Europe where she lived in the homes of the people of various countries. She has become very familiar with the problems of those people because of her close friendships with them.

The traveler told the clubwomen many of her experiences while abroad. She said she would return to Germany soon as a recreation worker for the U.S. government.

Members of the club sent out a box of food, toys, and clothing to a needy family in Campbell. In addition they sent 30 toys to the children at the Santa Clara County hospital and 40 pounds of candy to the veterans hospital in Palo Alto.

Plans were discussed for the local club to participate in the Old Settlers Day celebration in February. The women also decided to send a large delegation to the district conference of Business and Professional Women's clubs on January 22 and 23.

Moreland PTA To Meet On Tuesday

Moreland PTA will hold its regular meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Moreland clubhouse. Presiding will be Mrs. George Robertson.

Congratulations!

Congratulations! That's what friends are saying to Campbell's newest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Finnemore.

A total of 93 years of married life by previous marriages is behind the Campbell couple who exchanged vows in Santa Cruz yesterday. Finnemore, 73, came to this town 49 years ago to make his home. His wife, the former Ray Ellen Baxter, 66, came to Campbell about a year ago.

The newly-married couple will reside at 255 Redding road, Campbell.

A STUDY FOR CAMPBELL

In a recent news story for release several weeks ago we noticed an item that is of paramount interest to Campbell residents, businessmen and in fact all those who are interested in the growth and advancement of Campbell as a city.

The text of the story dealt with the successful election to incorporate the small community of Capitola.

Pertinent points of the release struck us as being important to this area because of the similarity of conditions existing between Campbell and Capitola.

Capitola is situated near Santa Cruz as Campbell is located adjacent to San Jose. They are both, to a certain extent, dependent upon the larger adjacent city for various necessities of existence. Capitola was faced with a serious problem of zoning as Campbell is. Both communities were alike in that itinerant vendors were allowed through the area, taking business from the local business houses that rightfully belonged to the home merchant.

Interest in the incorporation of Capitola was evidenced by the turnout at the polls which will change the course of civic life in that area. They now are in a position to COMMONLY direct the course of their own public affairs from their own COMMONLY operated and maintained offices instead of having their affairs handled in a general way from large county offices where their identity as a community was clouded with numerous other small unincorporated sections of the county. They are also in a position now to supervise the quality of growth in their city through city zoning and planning.

Of great importance also is the fact that in the incorporation of Capitola the property owner will probably enjoy lower taxes. This condition was brought about by the fact that by incorporating into a city they were able to set aside several county districts that were taking a large tax toll from the community.

Campbell can well benefit from a study of Capitola during the next few months to come.

Six-Inch Sermon

† REV. ROBERT H. HARPER †

By REV. ROBERT H. HARPER
The World in Which Jesus Lived.

Lesson for January 2: Galatians 4:4; Luke 2:1-7; Matthew 22: 15-16; 23-ab.

Memory Selection: Galatians 4:4. DURING six months of 1949 we shall have studies in the life of Jesus—in the first quarter events in the Galilean ministry. Passages of today's lesson are so grouped as to give a picture of the world in which Jesus lived.

These passages show that the world of Jesus was that of the Roman Empire, his province was Judea, and his native city Bethlehem. Augustus was emperor when Jesus was born; Tiberius when Jesus was crucified.

The temple was still the center of Jewish religion. When Jesus was twelve, Joseph and Mary went with him to the passover in Jerusalem. Shortly before Jesus entered upon his ministry, John the Baptist, his great forerunner, came preaching in the wilderness of Judea.

Several sects were rivals for influence among the people, chiefly the Pharisees and the Sadducees. They were bitter opponents of Jesus and his work.

It was indeed the fulness of time when Jesus came. The wide conquests of Rome had brought enforced peace to the greater part of mankind. The Greek language was understood by all cultured men. Lines of travel had been extended by land and sea. And there was a growing expectancy of some great event for mankind. It was an opportune time when Jesus came. Let us find in the conditions of the present an opportune time for the wider spread of our Lord's kingdom.

CARAVAN TO APPEAR IN CAPITAL CITY FOR FIRST TIME JANUARY 17

California's Historical Caravan will make its first appearance on the state capitol grounds in Sacramento, January 17.

Governor Earl Warren heads a list of top state officials who will participate in the opening ceremonies.

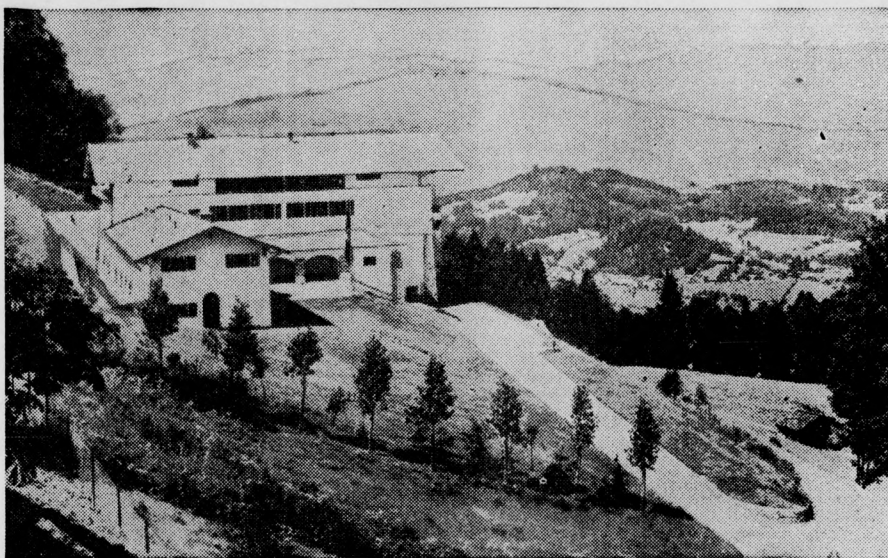

Assembled by the California Centennials Commissions as a key feature of its three-year commemorative program, the Caravan consists of a priceless collection of original documents and objects which highlight a series of fourteen exhibit sections. Each section depicts significant events of the outstanding periods in the state's colorful history.

The two buses which will carry the historical items are so designed as to form a single display. Visitors enter the Caravan through an awning covered ramp, pass through one bus into the other without alighting, and exit down a second ramp.

Following its stay in Sacramento, the traveling museum will go to Southern California. From there it will begin its two-year tour throughout the state.

GERMAN SPORTSLAND

American tourists can again visit two of the finest recreational areas in the world, Garmisch and Berchtesgaden in the Bavarian Alps. Shown above is a mountain chalet in Berchtesgaden which once belonged to Adolph Hitler.

FOR the first time since the end of the war, American tourists can again visit two of the finest winter recreational areas in the world, Garmisch and Berchtesgaden in the Bavarian Alps.

Garmisch, scene of the 1936 winter Olympics—when, incidentally, 155,000 people squeezed in to watch the world's best in snowy speedsters and high-flyers—is again preparing to be host to winter sports enthusiasts from all parts of Europe and from the United States.

The hub of activity in the winter sporting scene is centered in the valleys, the pine-clad mountain slopes which surround Garmisch, and along the towering 9,877-foot high Zugspitze, Germany's highest mountain. Everything desirable in the way of winter sports is located in this area—the Olympic ice and ski stadiums, the downhill ski trails on the rugged Kreuzsee mountain with many ski towns, and the Olympic bobsled run. Situated near the Austrian border, Garmisch can be reached within a few hours after arriving at Frankfurt's Rhein Main airport, which, in turn, is only 24 hours distant from New York.

All facilities, such as modern hotels and organized tours, as well as special ski trains and overnight sleepers, have recently been made available for U. S. civilian tourists. Prospective visitors can now prearrange hotel reservations, tours, and transportation free of extra charge. Specialty shops will outfit prospective skiers from head to foot in a matter of moments, while the beginners receive expert instruction from some of Germany's best ski "pros."

While the scenic beauty is the main attraction to many people, the expenses here are only a fraction of those ski enthusiasts will have to pay at Stateside resorts, such as Sun Valley, Idaho, or Aspen, Colorado. Equipment can be rented and expert instruction received for the small amount of 50 cents per day.

Many attractions will be offered the Garmisch visitor this winter. Ice hockey games, exhibition matches and new ice shows will treat the skating fans, while ski-jumping followers will witness jumping exhibitions at the Olympic ski stadium throughout the season.

Berchtesgaden, with Hitler's famous mountain retreat, will offer six well-blazed ski trails for the needs of every type of skier, and a ski carnival and ice shows can be attended on the Predigstuhl and Konigssee.

With the snow already well packed on the higher peaks of the Bavarian Alps, many American tourists are expected to take advantage of this newly reopened winter playground.

'Life' Topic Of Christian Science Lesson-Sermon

"Life" is the subject of the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, Jan. 16, with the Golden Text taken from John: "Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of man shall give unto you" (6:27).

Included in the sermon are the following citations:

The Bible: "And the devil said unto him, If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread. And Jesus answered him, saying, It is written, That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God" (Luke 4:3, 4).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Scriptures say, 'Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God,' showing that Truth is the actual life of man; but mankind objects to making this teaching practical" (p. 410).

TO SAVE PENNIES on EGG MASH

Figure it out! See for yourself how the savings you can sometimes make on price are too small to offset the extra profit you can make from Larro Egg Mash. Just one extra egg per bird every month can wipe out a difference of $1.12 per bag. Let these figures prove it to you.

A Leghorn hen eats about 40 lbs. of Larro Egg Mash a year. Therefore, 1 ton of egg mash will feed 50 laying Leghorns for 1 year. 50 hens x 1 more egg = 50 extra eggs per month. 50 extra eggs per month x 12 months = 600 extra eggs per year from 1 ton of mash. 600 eggs = 50 dozen x 45c = $22.50 more income per ton of mash.

—actually $1.12 per bag

See how you can be fooled by a saving in price? See how high quality Larro Egg Mash makes profits jump? Put your flock on Larro today—watch results!

This Week in WASHINGTON

THE NEW DEMOCRATIC CON-TROLLED 81st congress will be a pro-agriculture congress and according to all indications will be much more generous than the 80th congress in giving farmers about anything they want in legislation.

The only factor which might prevent this generosity, according to observers here, is failure of the leading farm organizations to agree on a program among themselves, or for some controversial subject like the butter-oil battle to build up such antagonisms as will defeat or water-down basic farm legislation.

The chairman-elect of both the new house and senate agricultural committees... Congressman Harold D. Cooley of North Carolina and Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma
... have advocated a straight-away 90 per cent of parity price support in opposition to the sliding 60 to 90 per cent as presently provided by the Aiken bill which does not take effect until January 1950. Farm organizations are not in complete agreement. All want price support but they have not reached accord on the ratio of parity.

The same thing is true on conservatism. All farm organizations want the conservation program
continued but the American Farm Bureau federation favors giving the agricultural extension service, which the federation shares in financing in some localities, wide responsibility for administration. The National Grange and the Farmers Union oppose the Federation stand and would put only the educational feature of the conservation program under the extension service.

It may be that the national conventions of the various organizations will bring them more into alignment.

In only four states do the Grange and the Farm Bureau really run a nip-and-tuck race
for membership. In New York, Grange membership runs 141,337
with the Farm Bureau membership at 87,336; in Michigan the Farm Bureau has 48,100 and the Grange 28,207; in Ohio the Farm Bureau membership is 55,777
while the Grange runs 113,632,
and on the west coast in California the Farm Bureau has 47,654
and the Grange 34,152.

Another large farm organization serving some 2,500,000 farm families is the Council of Farm Cooperatives

with 115 marketing and purchasing cooperatives with about 5,000 local groups. Memberships in these groups, however, duplicate memberships in the other three farm organizations.

Executive secretary of this organization is John W. Davis, a former school teacher and school superintendent, Missouri-born and Iowa-bred, formerly with the Farm Credit Administration and the Commodity Credit Corporation. He is a member of the eleven-man national advisory committee on research and marketing under the Hope-Plannagan act and twice served on U. S. delegations to the International Food and Agricultural Organization. An inkling of what may happen to farm price support in the coming congress is given by Mr. Davis when he says that he senses among farmers a move back to the more rigid price support system rather than to the flexible 60-90 support plan as provided in the Aiken long-range farm law.

HERE ARE SOME THINGS the farmers may get in the next congress if they ask for them... standby price controls without price ceilings on food or farm products as long as they don't get out of hand;
more grain bins from CCC; government authority to regulate trading margins on commodity exchanges;
extension of export and import controls; approval of the international wheat agreement if pact can be revived with British support; farm home building; increase in rural electrification and school lunch appropriations; additional crop insurance; overhaul of the farm credit agency; a national fertilizer program; and increased appropriations for reclamation and irrigation projects.

The farm population of the nation,
placed at approximately 27.5 million,
is not selfish in demands for price supports and other legislation according to farm leaders here. What they want is long-range programs to cushion the farmer from sudden economic shocks and save his land from slow deterioration under the contention that this is in the interest of the entire country. In return the farmer will continue full and abundant production of food and fibre.
These leaders point out that depression hits the farmer first and that farm collapse would bring the rest of the economic structure tumbling, so the nation's stability rests upon
the farmers' economic security.

will make more houses available
to veterans."

For the last seven months, Mr.
Gray said, he has visited installations in all 48 states of the Union.
On his visits to the various stations, he has consulted with loan guaranty officials of the Veterans Administration and with local groups of lenders and of veterans.

While their opinions were not unanimous, an overwhelming preponderance indicates that the decrease in the number of veterans' loans being guaranteed was due to factors other than the interest rate.

In some sections of the country
it seemed that the high prices of houses was the most important reason. In others, the absence of an adequate secondary market was given.

In other instances, local groups pointed out that veterans who were seriously in need of housing had already secured it, and that those who had not yet found their homes were in a mood of shopping rather than immediate purchase.

In some localities the interest rate was cited as the principal reason in the decrease of home purchases. However, it was pointed out in these places than an increased rate of interest would mean that veterans would have to pay a higher price for any homes that they bought.

Mr. Gray pointed out that the diversity of opinion had precluded an earlier decision. He said: "Although there is much evidence that veterans are 'priced out' of the housing market, many lenders'
groups and individual veterans have advised me of the difficulty or near impossibility to negotiate near impossibility of negotiating GI loans. On the other hand, those who are satisfied and who are lending or borrowing at four per cent, have made few representations. This is to be expected."

Disease Attacks Bush Berry Plants

In this discussion, Boysen, Cory
Thornless, Himalaya, Logan,
Mammoth, Nectar, Phenomenal,
and Young, as well as the dew-berries, are regarded as blackberry varieties.

Vermilion wilt may attack the various kinds of bushberry plants.
It stunts or kills the new canes of trailing types, such as Boysen and Young, which are very susceptible.
First-year plantings, may be severely affected and, in some instances, recover the next year.
The disease enters through the roots, causing the canes to wilt rather suddenly or to die gradually from the base upward. The Blackberry, particularly Young, Boysen, and Phenomenal, should not be planted where cotton, potatoes or tomatoes have been grown recently as they carry the disease and promote it in later crops.

Cane and leaf spot attacks Boy-
sen, Young, Mammoth, Cory Thornless, and Logan, causing the brown or grayish spots on the canes and small dead spots with brown or reddish borders on the leaves. Removal of old fruiting canes before the first winter rain and spraying in early winter with bordeaux mixture should keep this disease in hand. Orange rust is common in native wild blackberry.
It may cause considerable loss in nearby Young plants and moderate damage to Logan. Boysen seems to be immune.

The blackberry mite is a tiny pest that attacks principally the Himalaya, Cory Thornless, Mammoth, Oregon Evergreen, and Crandall blackberries, and prevents their ripening. The berries reach approximately full size but always remain hard, red and immature. As the buds are opening in spring, spray with lime-sulfur prepared by the following formula:

Liquid lime-sulfur—5 gallons;
Water to make 100 gallons; Dry

lime-sulfur—20 lbs.; Water, 100 gallons.

The raspberry horntail is a worm that girdles the tips of tender new shoots, especially of Logan and Himalaya, causing them to wilt. It may work down the

if he were running on that ticket.
There are about 1500 registered voters in this community. Twelve hundred voted on Nov. 2.

Now these 300 real Americans did not affect the electoral votes for Gov. Dewey; but their candidate for Representative from that Congressional district lost to his Democratic opponent by a very few votes. And these came patriots are exclaiming:
"What happened?"

We will tell them what happened—and why. In the first place the perfectly organized labor union campaign managements rang millions of doorbells and spent "real money" to defeat those whom they considered unfriendly to labor bossism.
They had an uphill fight and they fought it like trained veterans—and won.

The Republicans had a "lead pipe
cinch": It was going to be a landslide! The prognosticators all pronounced it. Even Dr. Gallup said
so. So 300 fine citizens didn't waste their valuable time voting in a little town in our state, and in New Jersey, and in Illinois, and in Ohio, and in 44 other states. They'd had plenty of warning and they'd heard and read plenty of lectures on overcon-fidence and on the duty of an American citizen. But they weren't going to be gulled by that old bull!

So they asked for it—and they got it! From now on the men whom they may be able to send to congress to curb labor czars with dictatorial proclivities — are not going to "curb." They tried that once when they passed the Taft-Hartley Law;
and to show their gratitude 300 stayed at home on Nov. 2 and let them down.

And those 300 let themselves down
—right into the laps of the big labor bosses. When they ask the President, and the congress to make the bosses stop spanking them — the President and the congress are first going to consult those who get out the vote and who do the electing—and that ain't going to be the 300.

It is late for this essay; but it is never too late to learn the lesson of the 300. Some day we may have another election.

Congressman Goes To Capital City

Congressman Jack Z. Anderson, 8th District Representative, left for the Nation's capital last week
well armed to fight for Santa Clara Valley's and San Benito County's share of water from the American River Project.

"We will do everything possible
in the House during the 81st Congress to assure our share of surplus water from Folsom Dam, and we will also do everything we possibly can to push the Project in the upper house," Anderson said.
"We have a splendid local committee working on the job of bringing water into Santa Clara Valley. Their work should have the support of everyone living in this area. By a concerted effort we should be able to convince Congress that we must have this water."

No Rate Increase On GI Loan, Says Administrator

No increase in the GI loan interest rate from four to four and one-half per cent will be made at this time, Carl R. Gray, Jr., Administrator of Veterans Affairs,
announced Monday.

Section 103 of Public Law 901
of the 80th Congress authorizes the Administrator of Veterans Affairs, with the consent of the Secretary, to set by regulation a maximum interest rate of four and one-half per cent on loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration if it is determined that the loan market demands the increase.

Mr. Gray's decision not to increase the rate was reached after an exhaustive study of all factors involved. He said: "I have consulted extensively with Government leaders, individual veterans, lenders and the veterans' service organizations throughout the United States.

"My principal responsibility and duty is to our veterans. In my studies of this question, I have reached the conclusion that an increase in rates would not be in their best interest, as the evidence fails to indicate an increased rate

Dale Carnegie

Author of
"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

STOP WORRYING

DURING the depression that followed the stock market crash in 1929, Edward F. Cook, 1306 Sherman Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., almost wrecked his health and his home.

He had been promoted to manager of one of the stores of the company for which he worked, and on the strength of that promotion, he was married. Then came the crash!

The future didn't look too bright, but all went well at first, for no one thought the depression could possibly last very long.

A few years passed and two children were added to his responsibilities. The business at the store dwindled—and continued to decrease as the weeks and the months passed. Edward began to worry; he didn't sleep well at night, tossed and turned even in his sleep. When he came home at night, instead of relaxing and enjoying the companionship of his family, he became morose. As he sat in his big easy chair, he worried about what had already happened and about what might happen on the morrow.

D. Carnegie

If the children played around him, if the radio sounded a little high, he would jump nervously from his chair. And the children suffered from his scolding. If his wife made a remark that couldn't be construed as a compliment, he accused her of nagging.

This went on night after night, week after week, month after month. Then one night his wife said "Eddie, we have to come to some sort of agreement; we can't go on like this. Life for us has become a 'hell on earth.' Either you quit your job and try to get another, or we will go on relief as thousands of others are doing. The alternative is for me to take the children and leave."

Well, that shocked him out of his mental condition. He didn't want his home life destroyed. And if his wife was ready to sacrifice her home and the things she was entitled to, why should he worry about the business of somebody else? He decided to stop worrying, to do all he could to promote business, and to do it cheerfully.

The next morning he greeted fellow workers and customers with a smile. They responded. Although business didn't immediately improve, it did not get any worse. Today, after 15 years, his home life is happy, his health is good, and he is still manager of that store. But what if he had continued to worry?

Davis Will Go To Vets Confab In Capital City

State low-interest financing of homes and farms for California veterans will be the major topic of a Veterans Service Conference to be held in Sacramento today, at which time Santa Clara County Area will be represented by John W. Davis, County Service Officer.

The conference is sponsored by the State Department of Veterans Affairs, and convened at 10 a.m. at the American Legion Post 61 Hall, 15th and H Streets. Several officials of the Department's Division of Farm and Home Purchases will give a panel discussion designed to give John W. Davis and other veteran counselors attending a well-rounded understanding of how best to help veterans obtain the low-cost State loans.

High-ranking officials of Federal agencies concerned with veteran problems will also be on hand to speak on problems of current interest.

Oganists To Hold Business Meeting

The San Jose Chapter American Guild of Organists will hold a business meeting and program on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 16, at 3 p.m. in Stanford Chapel, Palo Alto. Nanney of the Stanford University faculty presenting an organ recital. Following the recital, a very important business meeting will be held with Dean Iru Price presiding. The social hour will be in charge of Mrs. Jean Williams, Miss Laura Lee, and Mr. Nanney.

The meeting was originally scheduled for Jan. 9, but as a result of unexpected circumstances was postponed until Jan. 16.

John W. Davis will be away from his office at 226 North Market St., San Jose from Jan. 13 to Jan. 15. During that period Marian A. Hill will be in charge of rendering the usual services to Santa Clara County veterans.

In addition to requested subjects the speakers will talk on Japan and the Occupation, Life and Thinking in Postwar Western Europe, China and the Far Eastern Problems, United States-Soviet Relations, American Education, A Proposed Change in the American Electoral System and College Fraternities.

County Exhibitors Talk Over '49 Fair In Sacramento

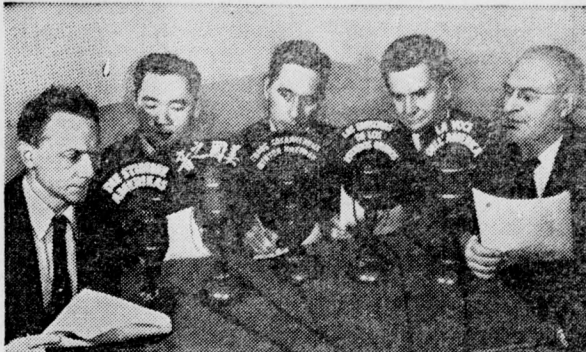

County exhibitors at the California State Fair met in the Administration building at the Fair grounds recently to check over with Kenneth B. Fry, chief of the bureau of exhibits, the premium awards for 1949 agricultural exhibits.

The members of the County Exhibitors' Association, of which Milo J. Schrock, agricultural commissioner of Stanislaus County, is president, suggested about 20 changes in the classifications of agricultural exhibits. They went over the list of 872 different items for which 2616 awards amounting to approximately $70,000 are given each year. The list includes a variety of fruits, grains, nuts, seeds, flowers, 55 feature exhibits, bees and honey.

This is the greatest variety of awards given by any fair in America, Fry pointed out, and reflects the immense diversity of California agriculture. The meeting itself is unique, for no other fair calls in its county exhibitors to help keep the list up to date as new varieties of farm products become important. The County Exhibitors' Association meets three times each year at the California State Fair.

Perfect Stranger

By Jack Mosher

After all, Celia couldn't help feeling sorry for the lonely young man, nor could she know how it would all turn out.

THE first thing Celia Brandon noticed about him was the way he sat. As if, she thought, studying the man at the corner table across the top of her menu, he had been propped up in his chair and was likely, at any minute, to go sliding off on the floor.

"Does he come in often?"

"Yes-a, Miss," said her waiter. "Every night this-a week, he come. But he does not eat. He just-a sits and sits."

Celia examined her find more closely.

His hair was greying much too rapidly, and his clothes were much too shabby for Garibaldi's, which was on 52nd, just around the corner from the theatre district.

He rose and came toward her table.

"Perhaps," she said, "he hasn't the price of a meal."

"Then why does he come?"

The waiter's attitude, Celia felt, was a coldly commercial one. The way most folks with something to sell looked upon those who had no money to buy. And determined to put the waiter in his place, she said, "I thought his face was familiar. Yes, of course! It's Freddy Malone. . . Tell him," she said, "that I'd like him to join me."

"Yes-a, Miss!"

For a moment after the waiter had delivered this invitation uncertainty marked the man's lean features. But when Celia countered with just the right degree of warmth in her own—the degree one would extend to a man friend not seen in many years yet warmly remembered—he rose and came toward her table.

He walked unsteadily and she wondered if he might be intoxicated. If that explained his propped-up appearance of a moment ago. Then he was alongside, bowing just a little from the waist, and she was saying, "It's so good to see you again, Fred."

"Yes, isn't it," he said, "Thanks for asking me over."

His tones made her feel that he was hungry. It was as if every word he spoke was scraped from the walls of his stomach, left some mark. And now that he was closer she could not mistake the suffering which lined his face.

More than food, she felt certain, was needed here. He needed good cheer. Someone to talk with.

"How about a Martini?" she said. "A pepper-upper, as they say."

He turned to the waiter, chuckling miraculously.

"A pepper-upper," he ordered, "for the lady." Then, when the waiter had gone off and leaning closer across the white table cloth, "Look!

It's damned nice of you. Having me like this, I mean. But I can't accept—"

"Forget it," Celia said, trying her utmost to spare him. "I don't know about you, but I'm hungry. Let's concentrate on dinner."

"Yes, of course. The dinner."

"How about some sea food?"

"Not for me." He made a wry face. "I've just come from there. Maybe you took notice of my roll."

"I wondered what it was."

"It's the genuine article," he assured her. "A Clyde-Mallory Line freighter just brought me back from the Far East. . . You see," he hurried on as if he had just so much time in which to tell it, "I struck it tough in Singapore. Went out there to work for a big oil company. It wasn't so big, because it folded a few weeks after I arrived. I was on the beach three months, broke to the wide, before I got this chance to work my way home—"

"Forget that now," Celia said, judging from his tones that every word must be an effort for him. "This Spagetti Italiane sounds mighty good to me."

"But I can't forget," he insisted. "And I think you should hear me out. Have you ever," he demanded, while Celia could find not a word with which to check him, "known what it is to be hungry, to starve?"

"I can well imagine, Celia interrupted, more firmly this time. 'I've heard New York is no different than Singapore if it comes to that. But let's get on with ordering now, eh?'"

"Yes, of course. Ordering."

He sounded the least bit let down. But he bucked up as the meal progressed.

"I must see more of you," he said. "You do me good."

"We do each other good, you mean."

"That's it!" He was as enthusiastic as a school boy attending his first grown-up date. "And look," he assured her, "I'll make up for tonight's dinner just as soon as I get placed."

"Don't mention it."

"I could get a job in Mexico. There's a fellow—"

"But why not try here in New York?"

"In an office?"

"Not necessarily."

"Then what?"

"Had you ever thought of acting," Celia said as the waiter returned with a small silver tray containing a half dollar and three thin dimes. You know what they say? If you can't make a go of anything else you're sure to click on the stage. And it seems to me," she added, making a fine show of waving the waiter and the eighty cents away, "that with the experience you've had knocking around the world you could put a lot of punch into play-acting."

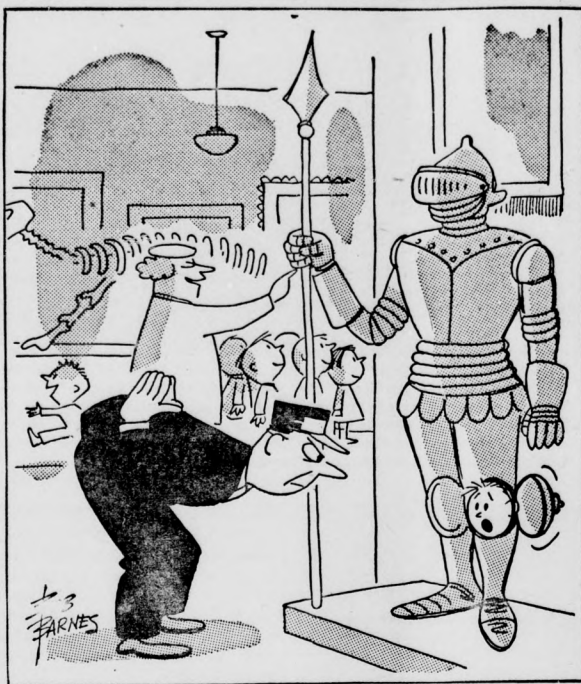

"Maybe you're right. In fact, I know you're right."

"What do you mean?"

He smiled broadly.

"Simply," he told her, "that I AM stage. I've just been putting on an act here. Rehearsing for my new play. I need a girl to play opposite me. She's rich as all get out. Money doesn't mean a thing to her. That's exactly the kind of girl you are in real life. So how about coming around in the morning to sign a contract? I'm Noel Howard—"

"Noel Howard?" Celia didn't spare the name mentioned with awe around casting offices where she had spent months trying to get a small part in his new production—in any production. "Then, listen mug!" she flung at him. "How about buying me another dinner right now? I couldn't eat a bite of that one for thinking I'd spent my last five dollars. . ."

"I was only trying it on, Mister."

Extension Service Obtains New Book

A copy of the New California Farm Record book has been received at the local office of the Agricultural Extension Service, 201 Post Office Building. As in former years these record books may be obtained only from the Associated Students Store on the University of California Campus at Berkeley. Growers desiring to inspect this new Farm Record book and possibly order the same can do so at the Extension Service Office.

This new edition is a radical revision of the earlier forms of the California Farm Record Book, says Farm Advisor, L. C. Barnard, and was prepared by Arthur Smith.

Extension Service Specialist in Farm Management. The labor record has been omitted to provide additional space for more essential financial records. Cash received and paid have been combined into a single double-page record to simplify entries of the many combination transactions.
